Playgrounds Bonds Win by Small Margin

Bond Propositions Not Popular at This Time

The 350,000 bond issue, which included parks and playgrounds, municipal baths, city hospital, public buildings, etc., all lost out at Tuesday's election excepting the playgrounds, the $150,000 issue for this purpose carrying by 30 votes.

There were 2726 persons who voted, which proves that interest was lacking, that the people are not enthusiastic in voting bonds, no matter how meritorious the cause may be.

Organized labor in Richmond was not for the bonds, and so declared itself previous to the election, claiming that it would not support the bonds on account of the city administration's open-shop policy and the general boycott of union labor on municipal work. It is charged that the local taxpayer and resident union man is being sidetracked by the "powers that be" who are in control of certain municipal improvements.

The vote on the different propositions follow:

Parks; playgrounds, $150,000—

For, 1320; against, 865; carried by 30 votes.

Natatorium, $50,000—

For, 1652; against 994; lost by 112 votes.

Hospital, $100,000—

For, 1694; against, 944; lost by 62 votes.

Public Building, Gym, Etc.—$50,000.

For, 1391; against, 1184; lost by 3.6 votes.

Elks Circus Nets $4600

Richmond Elks' circus was a grand success. The attendance exceeded the expectations of all, the gross receipts ran far into five figures. The cost of staging the big industrial show was approximately $15,000. After all expenses were paid a balance of $4608 was left, every cent of which will be expended for charity.

The Christmas tree to be given by the Elks on the circus grounds, 10th and Nevin, will be the largest and best ever exhibited in Richmond. John A. Bell is at the head of the committee of arrangements.

San Jose Elks Raise Large Charity Fund

San Jose Elks paid the record of top notch prices for theatrical performances last week at the big charity performance where the cheapest seats were one hundred dollars and the highest one thousand dollars.

The performance netted one hundred thousand dollars, which will be used to finance charitable agencies for the ensuing year.

THE THIEF

Ah, Time! you are a roguish thief,
You steal my treasures one by one,
So quietly I never know
Until the work is done.
Then after many years have passed,
And no longer my heart can play,
I know that something is gone for good.

Ship Subsidy Bill Is Passed by the House

Washington, Nov. 30—The ship subsidy bill strongly advocated by President Harding as the only means of saving the American merchant marine was passed by the house Tuesday. The vote, coming after a week of stormy debate was 208 to 184, a majority of 24.

The measure now goes to the senate where it will encounter the strong opposition of democrats and republican insurgents, making its passage before the end of the present congress doubtful. House democrats had attacked the measure from every conceivable angle, and had the support of some republican insurgents.

The bill provides for direct aid from the treasury, to the extent of about $30,000,000 a year with various forms of indirect subsidies.

Earthquakes Nearing the "Bad Lands"

Earthquake shocks in south r Illinois and western Kentucky Sunday night rattled dishes and were strong enough to break windows. How Chicago can escape without being "shook down" is a mystery, San Francisco became so loose and immoral that she got hers. Chicago is said to be uncomfortably near the seismographic disturbances.

Business Is Good

San Francisco, Nov. 30.— Travel over the Key Route ferry and interurban system between San Francisco and Oakland is increasing heavily, according to claims made by the company in a petition to the state railroad commission yesterday.

Permission to issue $175,000 in ten-year, six per cent trust certificates to purchase fifteen new coaches was asked.

City in Brief

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Crane and daughter and son Lois and Gerald spent Thanksgiving with their cousins, Mr. and Leon Phillips of San Jose. Mr. Crane's aunt, Mrs. Couse of Milwaukee, and daughter, Edith, were also present.

Clemenceau Is Strong On "Hen Fruit"

Georges Clemenceau, the Tiger of France, retains longevity and vitality by going to bed and getting up with the chickens, he states, he also partakes generously of "hen fruit." He orders eight soft boiled eggs for supper and five for breakfast at 5:30. He has the energy of a man half his age and lays it to his strict schedule and the use of eggs. He is 81 years old.

THE RICHMOND TERMINAL is the oldest newspaper in Richmond. Fearless. No muzzle.

President Harding Is Cutting Down Overhead

Washington, Dec. 1,— Budget making at Washington for the coming year is nearly done. The estimates are practically completed and soon will be in shape for the printer. When the short term of Congress is convened, December 4, the estimates will be sent to the capitol by the president. This will be America's first scientifically compiled budget.

The total estimates making up the budget will not exceed $3,198-000,000.

President Harding is standing by his announcement of July 11 in which he stated that estimates in excess of revenue would not be sent to congress. In this is clearly shown his sound economic policy.

Lane - Kruger

Married—At the bride's home, 524 Stannage avenue, Albany, Wednesday Evening, November 29, 1922, Miss Anita Kruger to Errol Lane, Rev. S. K. Sanborne of Richmond performing the ceremony.

The bride is a popular Albany girl and grew into womanhood there. She is a graduate of Richmond high, and has been teaching in Albany and Richmond for a number of years.

Errol Lane, the young man who won the hand of Miss Kruger, is also a Richmond high school graduate, and is now employed at the Standard Oil company.

The popular newlyweds are receiving congratulations from a host of eastbay friends.

Charged With Making Bogus Coin

According to information received at Sheriff R. R. Veale's office, Harry L. Moore, who was arrested in Antioch last week on a charge of having counterfeit coins in his possession, plead guilty to the charge before U. S. Judge Wm. S. Van Fleet in San Francisco and was sentenced to three months in the San Francisco county jail and fined $100.

Moore was alleged to have been making bogus money in Antioch. The specific charge on which he was arrested and tried was having three counterfeit coins in his possession. He was arrested by Constable Evan Thomas of Antioch, Deputy Sheriff Ralph Harrison and a federal officer.—Gazette.

Price of Sugar Soaring

Sugar was quoted at $7.70 in San Francisco yesterday, which would indicate that war prices are approaching.

City Officials' Salaries Are Cut

The workingman's salary is often subject to a cut, but Martinez city board of trustees play no favorites. Monday night the board of trustees did some salary pruning.

The city engineer's salary was cut from $250 to $175. The city attorney was hit hard, his salary being cut in two, or from $100 to $50. The city auditor was reduced from $75 $25.

It is said that the salary-cutting wave is heading toward Richmond where a revision of salaries is demanded by taxpayers and those who would readjust to pre-war conditions and schedules.

U. S. Treasury Savings Certificates Are Giltedge

During the war the government offered war saving stamps, paying about 4 per cent as a method of saving for people of small means.

Since the war, and to take the place of war savings stamps, the Government offered Treasury savings certificates in denominations of $25, $100 and $1000, now sold to investors at $20.50, $82 and $820, respectively. They pay 4 per cent cent if held until maturity, five years from date of issue.

The government is doing everything possible to encourage saving in the United States by offering sound and attractive securities for the investment of small sums. If you want to save and insure your future, it would pay you to investigate Uncle Sam's saving system.

RANDOM COMMENT

What's the Use of Learning Anything?

Dr. Alexis Carroll appears to defend the white corpuscle. Half a century or so ago it was taught, and up to now has been believed, that only the red corpuscle possessed any virtues. The white ones were what was left after it was all over with the reds.

How the doctors found this out no layman need stop to inquire. We didn't. We accepted it out of the spoon just as we did the doses tendered us, and licking the spoon, let it go at that.

Now something else has to be taken. Of course, it really is all right. The man, or school, or nation that never takes a wrong road never learns the right one, and never gets anywhere.

San Francisco Scores

By seven to one bonds were voted for building additional school houses in our metropolis. Practically all classes, races, and religions evidently rallied to the support of the schools.

In Oregon the public school has dragged into politics, which is an awful calamity for that state.

The circulation of suburban and country weekly newspapers is often under-estimated. Cases are known where 8 and 10 families have been served by one paper. A daily paper is consulted only one day while a weekly paper lasts several days. The advertising value of a newspaper depends on the number of readers. The weekly newspaper for reasons given above has more readers, for it is referred to many times during the week by members of the household and is also borrowed by neighbors and made to serve a larger number than the daily.

Fatal Auto Accident on Garrard Ave. Monday

John Tauckert, a moulder employed at the Pacific Sanitary works, died in a local hospital Monday morning from a fractured skull, the result of an accident on Gerrard avenue, when the automobile in which he was riding overturned, throwing him out of the machine to the pavement, fracturing his skull.

The accident was caused by a stalled car, which had been left in the street without lights, the car in which Tauckert was riding telescoping the stalled car.

The machine in which Tauckert met his death was driven by John Odasio of 427 C street, Richmond, who, when he suddenly came upon the obstruction, turned sharply to avoid a collision, overturning his car. Odasie escaped with slight injuries.

Minister Ttansferred

Rev. Peter E. Doyle, pastor of Lady of Mercy Church at West Richmond, has been transferred to St. Margaret's in East Oakland. Father Doyle will be succeeded here by Rev. William Cleary who comes from Suisun. Father Doyle leaves many friends here, where he is well liked by his parishoners.

Firemen's Dance

(Albany Argus)

The volunteer firemen promise those who attend their dance Saturday night, December 2, at Albany auditorium, one good time. A good jazz orchestra has been secured, and the dancers will be highly pleased with the program as arranged for their entertainment. Many tickets have been sold and a big crowd will be in attendance.

The proceeds go for a most worthy cause—Christmas tree cheer for the kiddies.

Men of St. Ambrose to Entertain

(Albany Argus)

December 9 the Catholic Men of St. Ambrose Parish will stage an entertainment and dance at Cornell auditorium, and we all know that these "peppery" young men, and old ones, too, of St. Ambrose, know how to put on a dance or an entertainment.

Leave it to them to get out a crowd. Everything will be first-class; good music, good vaudeville, in fact everything right up to the minute. Be there and have a good time, Cornell auditorium, Saturday evening, Dec. 9, 1922.

Albany School Board's Action Upheld

Judge T. W. Harris of the superior court in rendering his decision upheld Albany school board in the board's right to discharge Mrs. Hardy, a former (married) teacher in the Albany schools.

Judge Harris held that Mrs. Hardy had no standing under the teachers' tenure act, and that she is not entitled to receive either salary alleged to be due or to be restored to her former position.

According to Judge Harris' decision, Mrs. Hardy was only working part time, and was not teaching under a supervising principal. For this reason the court ruled that the trustees had a right under the law to dismiss her from the teaching force.

Contra Costa County Pugilist to Box in Omaha

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 1—Frankie Schoell of Buffalo, N. Y., and Dave Shade the Concord, California fighter, have been matched for a ten-round bout here December 7 under auspices of the Spanish-American war veterans. Shade has gone into training here.

Shade has been spending some time in New York striving to obtain a bout with Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., the new welterweight champion, whom he has fought twice, winning one and drawing Walker in the other. As yet Walker states he is willing to meet all comers, except Shade.

Thanksgiving Turkeys Come Off Their High Perch

Thanksgiving was a quiet day in the eastbay cities, home gatherings and turkey dinners being the "main attractions."

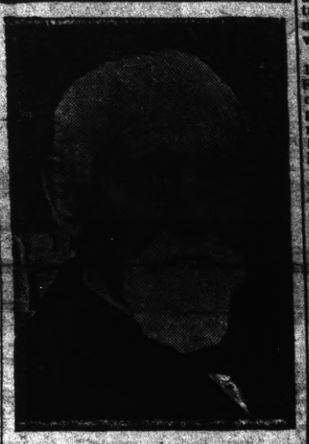
Turkeys went begging at 25 and 35c per pound in the San Francisco and eastbay markets and many took advantage of the slump in prices.

The cause of the cut in prices was due to the over supply, several thousand tons of turkeys being shipped in the first of the week, and the apathy of the consumer knocked the "6" out of 60c in a jiffy.

The day when the consumer can be exploited "is gone forever."

REMINISCENCES OF A CENTENARIAN

EX-SENATOR CORNELIUS COLE



Ex Senator Cole, past his 100th year, tells of part he played in Lincoln's Administration in Western Railway Problems.

Although past his 100th birthday, Cornelius Cole, successively Congressman and United States Senator from California in the days when the Union Pacific and Central Pacific railroads were being built, recalls as if it were only yesterday the details of those epochal undertakings.

And he is the living corroboration—if corroboration be needed—of the United States Supreme Court in its recent decision that it was the intention of the founders of those railroads and of the lawmakers who made them possible that they should be operated as one continuous line between the Pacific Coast and the Missouri River without discrimination against each other. He speaks as a member of the "committee of 13" of the House of Representatives, which drafted the Pacific railroad legislation passed in Congress in the early '60s. He says:

"It was the intention of every member of the 'committee of 13,' and it is so stated in the legislation under which the roads were constructed, that the two lines should be operated as one continuous railroad and that neither should discriminate against the other."

Now that the Supreme Court has ordered the Southern Pacific to divorce the Central Pacific, former Senator Cole is confidently hopeful that the original purpose in constructing the Union Pacific and Central Pacific will be carried out in accordance with the desires of Abraham Lincoln, the friend of his early manhood. Besides being strongly in favor of upholding the decision of the Supreme Court, he believes that the people of California generally are of the same view.

In addition to his close friendship for Lincoln, whom he accompanied to Gettysburg on the occasion of the famous Gettysburg address, the centenarian lawmaker has another claim to intimate interest for Californians. He was one of the original incorporators of the Central Pacific railroad.

At that time he was an attorney in Sacramento. As a '49er in the new frontier country he early became convinced that the development of California rested on its connection with the East through railroad transportation. Consequently, he became one of the enthusiastic promoters of the proposed railroad and was among those instrumental in bringing the project before Congress.

As a result of the efforts of Cole and his associates, Theodore T. Judah was sent to Washington in 1861 and succeeded in having the "committee of 13" appointed in the House to investigate the feasibility of constructing a transcontinental railroad. This committee put through the act of 1862, which gave life to the Union Pacific.

Cole was elected to Congress in 1863. Aware that as an official of the Federal Government he would be called on to take action with respect to the government-financed transcontinental roads, he sold his 25 shares of Central Pacific stock for $4,000. The late Leland Stanford was the purchaser.

When Cole became a member of the Lower House, he was placed on the "committee of 13," which was headed by Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania. The new California Congressman proved his value by pointing out defects in the act of 1862 and to him was given the task of drafting amendments to that law.

In 1864, the amended bill passed Congress, providing for incorporation of the Union Pacific to build westward from the Missouri River and the Central Pacific to build eastward to join the Union Pacific. The 1864 legislation placed the credit of the United States behind the roads and gave them large land grants.

In 1865, Cole was defeated for re-election to Congress by the self-same interests to whom he had given aid—the Central Pacific promoters, Collis P. Huntington, as head of the group consisting of Stanford—who bought Cole's Central Pacific stock for $4,000—Charles Crocker and Mark Hopkins, conceived the idea of a great terminal on Goat Island to San Francisco Bay. He sought to acquire from the United States the tidelands to the north of the island. Cole fought this project. So he didn't go back to Congress.

But he did come back strong in 1867, being elected to the United States Senate, where he served until 1873.

From his own personal knowledge, former Senator Cole agrees thoroughly with the decision of the United States Supreme Court where it says:

"We do not find it necessary to pass on the Government's contention that the leases to the Southern Pacific and the acquisition by it of Central Pacific stock were in and of themselves violative of the Pacific railroad acts of Congress of 1862 and subsequent supplemental legislation."

In support of this finding by the highest court of the land, the centenarian Senator took an old volume of statutes from his library and read—without the aid of glasses—the following excerpt from the Pacific railroad acts:

"That the several companies authorized to construct the aforesaid roads are hereby required to operate and use said roads and telegraph for all purposes of communication, travel and transportation, so far as the public and the Government are concerned, as one continuous line, and in such operation and use to afford and secure to each equal advantages and facilities as to rates, time and transportation without any discrimination of any kind in favor of the road or business of any or either of said companies or adverse to the road or business of any or either of the others."

After reading this extract, Cole's comment was as follows:

"The original intent of our Pacific railroad acts has apparently not been carried out, either morally or legally. We had in mind in the 'committee of 13' solely the development of the great West, and at least this spirit should govern controversies of any nature whatever. Competitive transportation is essential to development and should be fostered in every way possible."

Cole was born in Lodi, N. Y., on September 17, 1822. He jointed the '49ers in the rush for gold in California and then became a lawyer. Recently, he visited the United States Senate and was the center of an informal reception on the floor.

He has no rule for long life. Asked for his recipe on "how to live to be a hundred," he replied:

"There is no rule. Just live. For my part I have always avoided extremes and excesses."

Mr. Dulbore—Good evening, Miss Philippa. I was just passing your house and thought I'd look in on you.

Does this smoker know what he's talking about?

He says the best pipe of the day is the first one

A smoker from Zanesville, Ohio, who prefers to conceal his identity under the initials "A.K.K.," insists that the after-breakfast pipe is far and away the best pipe of the day.

"Of course," writes A.K.K., "it depends somewhat on the breakfast. I couldn't get much joy out of a pipe after getting up from burnt oatmeal, bad coffee, and soggy toast. But after one of the breakfasts my wife can turn out, that's different!

"Then when I step out on the porch and light up the old pipe, I very nearly approach the pinnacle of my day. As I figure it, one puff after breakfast is worth a dozen puffs after dinner.

"Somehow the tobacco has a flavor early in the morning that it never quite approaches later in the day.

"It may be that a cool pipe draws better. I don't know. It may be the tobacco or the pipe, or just me. I only know that I like the first pipe of the day the best.

"But please don't let this preference of mine for an early-morning pipe in any way injure my standing as an inveterate pipesmoker. I smoke from breakfast until bedtime and get a lot of pleasure out of each pipe provided always that I use the right kind of tobacco."

At this point it seems only fair to admit that A.K.K. is an Edgeworth smoker. Has been for the last ten years and expects to be for the rest of his life.

Thousands and thousands of smokers all over the country have discovered that Edgeworth is just the "right kind of tobacco" to suit their tastes.

Edgeworth may or may not be the right kind of tobacco for you. At least we want to give you the opportunity of finding out just what you do think about it.

Just jot your name and address down on a postal and we will send you immediately free samples, both of Edgeworth Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed. If you will also include the name and address of the dealer from whom you usually purchase your tobacco supplies, we will appreciate the favor.

Edgeworth is sold in various sizes to suit the needs and means of all purchasers. Both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are packed in small, pocket-size packages, in handsome tin humidors, and also in various handy in-between sizes.

For the free samples address Larus & Brother Company, 50 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

BEWARE OF SHADOWS

TO MAKE one's self happy, to keep on the sunlit trails, to go about the day's duties with a light heart and a willing hand, one must keep constantly in the splendent, radiant rays from the worlds above.

It is not easy to wear a smile when troubles hover near, but by continued effort in the right spirit, it can be done.

Many of our annoying perplexities are of our own making, consequently they can be avoided by turning from them when they first knock at the door of our hearts for admission, and shutting the door in their faces.

We are inclined to brood over some fancied wrong until it becomes a formidable ghostly thing that haunts our life from day to day. We are prone to forget that we are rational beings possessed of spiritual powers capable of turning night into day by a grain or two of faith, which in our moments of despondency we frequently overlook, or cast aside in quest of a balm of our own.

We are not willing to accept the sacred promises given to us by the Master of Men, simply because we prefer the shadows of doubt rather than the glorious sunlight of enduring truth, so we continue to stumble and fall in the darkness of our creation and blame the Fates for our miserable plight.

Human vanity and an exalted idea of our blood-and-flesh prowess are in most cases responsible for the sorrows, tears and disappointments that usually beset us.

We make pitiable jobs of our work but we stubbornly refuse to change our methods even though they bring us nothing but regret and pain.

And generally we rest fairly content with our failures, for we keep multiplying them and courting their company when we know in our hearts that we should pursue a contrary course.

We wish to be assured of brighter days, but in our blind eagerness to find them, we deliberately turn our backs upon the paths that take to the hills and choose the rougher roads that carry us down to the dark valleys.

If we would not waste our years in ignorance, we must lift our eyes up to the light of Wisdom, place our hands confidently in her always friendly palm and be content to be guided by her kindly counsel and illuminating smile, for there is no other way by which we can hope to overcome impeding obstacles and reach the heights.

MADE HIM FEEL THE COLD

Young Man's Excellent Exemplification of the Power of Mind Over Matter.

The power of mind over matter has been discussed since mankind found itself.

Epictetus, the Roman slave, knew much about it; so did Marcus Aurelius; Bishop Berkeley of England had his theory; in our day and country it has been made much of by many persons. The latest advocate is Emile Coue, the French exponent of auto-suggestion.

Examples of this influence may be discovered anywhere.

In an elevator, for instance, two young men were discussing the weather.

"Pretty cold this morning," said one.

"Not so cold," declared the other, throwing out his chest.

"It was 36 degrees by my thermometer," said the other.

"Gee!" shivered the second. "If I'd a known that I'd a put on my overcoat."

Invention Tests Air.

The Paris-London air service has an ingenious instrument for measuring the depth of fog above the starting place at Croydon or Abbeville, and so to determine whether there is clear, dry weather a few hundred feet up. The instrument, which is based on the property of human hair of contracting sharply on passing from wet to dry air, consists of a hair attached to a trigger that holds a ring. The instrument is sent aloft with toy balloons on a string; as soon as it reaches dry air the hair contracts, pulls the trigger, and down comes the ring on the string.—Youth's Companion.

WAYS WITH MEATS

THE main dish of the meal is very important and variety is the aim of most cooks. There are but a limited number of meats, but by combinations and various ways of serving we may make them different and multiply the number of dishes we serve.

Veal Cutlet.

Cut a veal cutlet into pieces two by three inches, then flatten well with the palm of the hand. Dip in egg, then in bread crumbs, and fry a golden brown in deep fat. Then place in the oven for twenty minutes to finish cooking. Drain the fat from the pan, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, brown quickly and add one cupful of water. Cook for five minutes, add salt and paprika, one tablespoonful of grated onion, two tablespoonfuls of minced green pepper. Lift the meat to a warm platter and pour the sauce around the cutlets.

Stuffed Calf's Heart.

Cut open the heart and remove the tubes. Wash in plenty of cold water and fill with any well-seasoned stuffing. Sew to hold in shape, then tie in a cheese cloth and steam until tender. Place in a baking pan, rub well with butter, cover with bread crumbs and brown in a hot oven. Calf's heart cut in slices and sauted in a hot frying pan with butter, makes a tasty dish. Cook well on both sides and serve well seasoned.

THANKSGIVING

By WILL M. MAUPIN

I THANK Thee, Lord, that through the year
Rich blessings have around me spread;
That though some days seemed dark and drear
The sun some gleams of splendor shed.
I thank Thee, Lord, for strength of arm
To toil for those within my care;
For Thy great love that saved from harm
And blessings gave in richest share.
For all Thy blessings on life's way
I thank Thee this Thanksgiving Day.

I thank Thee, Lord, as one by one
The days sped to eternity,
Each evening's low descending sun
Left loved ones here to welcome me.
I thank Thee, Lord, when day's work o'er
And footsteps turned to home and rest,
That childish welcomes at the door
Made ev'ry passing moment blest.
For all these joys I gladly pay
My tributes this Thanksgiving Day.

I thank Thee, Lord, that each day's dawn
Was ushered in with hope and cheer;
That each day's sun could shine upon
Life's path devoid of thorn or tear.
I thank Thee, Lord, for soft caress
Of childish fingers on my face;
For love that left, through storm and stress,
Around my board no vacant place.
For blessings spread about my way
I praise Thee this Thanksgiving Day.

I thank Thee, Lord, for all the friends
Whose cheery welcomes make life sweet;
For love that all my way attends
And make my happiness complete.
I thank Thee, Lord, for hands stretched out
To clasp my own in friendship warm;
For hope that puts to flight each doubt
And haven gives in ev'ry storm.
For all Thy goodness on life's way
I praise Thee this Thanksgiving Day.

Uncommon Sense . . .

By JOHN BLAKE

KEEP YOUR TEMPER

A MAN can acquire courage in an hour. It has been often done on battlefields.

He can learn self-possession in a year.

But it takes many years of intensive training to teach him to keep his temper.

Yet these years are well spent. Unless you are certain that your temper is irritation-proof, you can never be sure of yourself.

At some time, on some occasion, you may lose all control of yourself and do something that you will regret for the remainder of your life.

It is useful to teach boys boxing, not only because it develops their muscles and enables them to defend themselves in case of necessity, but because it is the best lesson in temper-keeping.

No man, without training, can endure sudden pain, inflicted by another man without a temporary fit of anger.

Doubtless you have sometimes walked along a path in the woods behind a companion and been smitten smartly in the face by a branch he released as he passed. If you didn't lose your temper you were hardly human.

Learn to avoid sudden anger, which is very different from the slow deliberate kind which you ought to feel in the face of a great wrong or evil.

For, if moved to quick wrath, the blood flies to your head, your judgment departs, and for a few minutes or a few seconds you are no better than a maniac.

You may not resort to blows, but you are likely to resort to hot words that are more dangerous than blows, for they will be longer remembered.

Nothing worth while was ever accomplished in a fury. No vision, seeing red, ever saw clearly. No brain, flushed with blood, was ever able to think.

It is right that you should be angry at evil, that you should be indignant when you see, for example, a man beating a horse or a child. But your power to redress such a wrong, even to save the victim, departs if you are moved to violent rage.

Learn to keep your temper. It will take a long, hard course of lessons, but they will pay.

JAPAN BOOSTS HER RICE HARVEST

Enlarged Production Due More to Improved Methods Than Increase in Acreage.

Tokyo.—While Japan does not produce sufficient rice for the needs of her people, who, even after an elaborate banquet, require a bowl or more of their staple food, production has kept pace with the increase of the population. In the early days of the Meiji reign, when the population was 35,000,000, there was 35,000,000 koku of rice produced. This year, with a population of 70,000,000, the crop is estimated at an equal number of koku. The increase in production is due more to improved methods than greater acreage under cultivation.

Oldtimer Deplores Fact That the Dainty Seems to Have Gone Out of Fashion.

When I was a boy I was very fond of succotash, and down in New England years ago we were told that it was made as the Indians made it, just pole beans and corn boiled together, and maybe it wasn't good!

In traveling around the country at various hotels I often ask for succotash especially at this season of the year when the beans and corn are just right but what offerings are placed before me under the name of succotash!

In many parts of the country lima beans are used in making succotash, and lima beans make nice succotash, but I don't think the Indians knew anything about lima beans.

Paper for Dark Room.

Modern photographic plates are so sensitive that often a screen of red glass in the dark room is not sufficient to prevent fogging. Then pass it over blotting paper and dry it. To render the coloring matter more adherent, a little gum arabic may be added to the solution.

How much sleep do you need?

IT isn't so much a question of the number of hours you spend in bed, as it is of the quality of the sleep you get. Is your sleep sound and restful, or is it fitful and unrefreshing?

One common cause of wakefulness at night is overstimulation from coffee drinking. For coffee contains caffeine which irritates the nerves and frequently leads to insomnia.

If you have any idea that coffee keeps you awake at night, or makes you nervous, make a change from coffee to delicious Postum.

This pure cereal beverage contains nothing that can harm health, and its flavor is much like coffee. In fact, many people prefer Postum for its flavor alone.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

The two forms of Postum are equally delicious and the cost is only about 1c per cup.

LAST OF GANG OF "BAD MEN"

How Citizens Wiped Out the "Dalton Crowd" When They Raided Coffeyville, Kansas.

Among the many desperadoes who menaced the public in the then territory of Oklahoma in the late eighties and early nineties was the notorious "Dalton gang," consisting of Bob, Grat, Emmett and Bill Dalton, aided by various confederates, prominent among whom were Dick Broadwell and Bill Powers, says E. A. Brininstool in Adventure Magazine. Bill Dalton had no hand in the final raid of the outlaw band on the two banks at Coffeyville, Kan., October 5, 1892.

The Dalton gang rode into Coffeyville, being reinforced in this raid by Powers and Broadwell. They trotted their horses boldly down the main street, the Dalton brothers wearing false beards, as they were well known in the town. They were recognized, however, by a merchant named McKenna, who quickly spread the alarm that "the Daltons were in town on mischief."

Meantime the bandits had entered an alley in the rear of one of the banks. Here they tied their horses and prepared for action. Grat Dalton, Powers and Broadwell entered the C. M. Condon bank, while Bob and Emmett hastened into the First National bank across the street. The officials of both banks when intimidated with guns, blandly informed the robbers that the time lock in the vaults would not be off for 15 minutes. The bandits waited.

During this wait the town was arming itself, and bullets began to fly through the windows of the Condon bank. In the First National about $20,000 in greenbacks was secured and stuffed into a grain sack, and Bob and Emmett Dalton escaped to the alley by a rear door. Here they were joined by the other bandits, who had secured about $3,000.

A terrific fight took place in and near this alley, three or four citizens being killed and several wounded. John Kloehr, a liveryman, killed Bob and Grat Dalton, and Bill Powers was also shot dead. Broadwell was fatally wounded and was found dead just outside town. Emmett was seriously shot, but recovered and was sentenced to the penitentiary for life, but was pardoned in 1907 and is now living a respectable life. Bill Dalton was killed in the Indian territory in 1894 while resisting arrest.

An Inspection.

Gladys O'Weary had looked at the clock several times and at last Percy Vehere observed her glances.

"You were looking at the clock?" he said.

"Yes," she answered with a faint smile.

Then he got up and went over to the mantelpiece and looked at the clock for fully half a minute.

"I don't see anything the matter with it," he said, and returned to his seat.

And he stayed an hour longer.—Kansas City Star.

Why Freight Rates Cannot Be Reduced

Railroads Under Public Control

Transportation Charges Must Stay Up Until Costs Come Down, President Storey of the Santa Fe Explains

United States Senator Capper, through his various publications, has been demanding a reduction of freight rates; but his attitude on the general subject of railroads has not blinded him to the main facts about government control, which have been clearly presented in the following editorial from one of his papers, the Topeka Daily Capital:

"The railroad cannot fix its own rates and charges.

"It cannot name the wages it will pay.

"It cannot enter into combinations and deals.

"It cannot shut down when business goes to the bad.

"It cannot buy or sell a railroad system.

"It cannot make capitalistic profits and dividends.

"It cannot even determine how much capital it shall issue on its property, or issue any without previous approval of the public.

"It is, in fact, an agency of the public, controlled completely by the government."

The fact is, rates cannot be reduced unless costs are reduced. Costs cannot be reduced so long as the present scale of wages and the prices of fuel, materials and other supplies are maintained, and in these matters the hands of the Santa Fe are tied.

What is particularly needed at this time is better transportation service, more cars, locomotives, and other facilities necessary for moving the business, and the Santa Fe is doing everything in its power to provide these.

Can We Adhere to the Policies of Former Presidents

A long time ago, Washington enjoined his countrymen from being entangled in the European diplomacy. At the time it was good advice and was faithfully followed. It has been one of political creeds. The situation of the world has been so greatly changed that now it is a question of whether or not we CAN adhere to that policy.

The situation in the far east at the present moment has compelled Mr. Hughes to interfere far enough to make other nations understand that the United States will not submit to the closing of the Dardenelles. If Turkey should undertake to prevent one of our vessels, either war or merchantman, from going through, bad feeling would be at once aroused.

The Algerians, decades ago, learned the temper of the American blades, when they levied a tribute on our vessels plying in the Mediterranean. Turkey may remember that, or, if she is backed by other nations, defy the United States.

The United States is sincerely for peace. It was almost impossible to drive us into the great war. We all joined in the chorus, "I did not raise my boy to be a soldier." We considered the awful tragedy over the seas something that we were concerned in only indirectly. We even took down large (paper) profits.

The condition of our army and navy was misrepresented to us.

Germany concluded that we were too proud to fight, and imposed on us to the limit. For all this we paid bitterly. Probably 50,000 of our boys—more likely 100,000 died a result of our unpreparedness. Had we been prepared, Germany would not have provoked us.

Now, is it advisable for us to settle down into the same placid state? No trained army, no trained officers—no trained naval force. Nothing except idiotic complacency at a moment when Europe and Asia may be the scene of a terrific war?

Had we not better carry the "big stick" that Roosevelt advised?

If there comes a war, the chances are fifty to fifty that we get dragged in. Why not be a little bit prepared?

Respectable men on the spot, knowing the situation in every detail, sternly warn us that the situation is critical. We should take heed.

M. H. DeYoung Again

Mr. De Young richly deserves the admiration and praise of every citizen of California. He now announces his intention to add a unit to the museum. He has it in his power to amass a tremendous fortune. That he chooses to expend his money for the public, is a matter everlastingly to his credit.

A Real Pity

It is a regrettable thing that the eminently respectable Century published a story which is intrinsically indecent. It is by Branch Cabell, who seems unfortunately to have gone entirely estray.

His heroes are not so much after all. Any ordinary Missouri jack rampaging down a country lane could discount Jurgen and not half try. But why such filth in the Century?

British physicians have advised that pipes are less injurious than boughten cigarettes. Our girls roll their own.

Forgets Dignity of Program.

At a recent Nature Study club meeting at which Dr. C. H. Eigenmann was a guest he told the following story:

Pat and Mike were section employees. Mike was made superintendent. Pat went into his office one day and said: "Hello, Mike, give me a railroad pass."

Mike, feeling the importance of his promotion over his old friend, said: "That's no way for you to do. About ten o'clock tomorrow morning you come to the door, knock, take off your hat, scrape your feet and say: 'Good morning, Mr. Murphy.' I'll say 'Good morning, Pat, and what can I do for you?' Then you state your business in a dignified manner, and I'll take it under advisement."

The next morning Pat came, knocked at the door, and followed directions explicitly. When he said "Good morning, Mr. Murphy," Mike said: "Now, that's more like it. What can I do for you, Pat?"

"You can go to the devil. I got a pass over the B. & O.," Pat responded.

"But I thought they didn't give passes any more," the English woman in the crowd said.—Indianapolis News.

Invented Seawater Still.

At one time Alexander Graham Bell became interested in the distillation of salt water for drinking purposes.

Off the coast of Nova Scotia fishing dories frequently get lost from their ships in fog, and their occupants suffer greatly from thirst before they can reach land. To Mr. Bell this seemed unnecessary, and he invented a compact and portable still, which occupied very little room, but which could turn salt water into fresh fast enough to sustain life and mitigate the suffering of two or three men who might happen to get adrift in an open boat.

When the miniature yacht Typhoon sailed from Baddeck, Cape Breton, to England, two or three years ago, it was provided with one of these stills for use in case of accident or emergency.—George Kennan, in the Outlook.
